

Study and Stay at Tyndale House, Cambridge

A guide for readers and residents

Welcome to Tyndale House

Tyndale House is a Cambridge-based research centre housing the only academic library in the UK focused entirely on biblical studies.

At the heart of Tyndale House is a residential community of scholars, working collaboratively in a mutually supportive environment. We offer private library desks and affordable accommodation for those working in biblical scholarship or related disciplines at a postgraduate or higher level.

Although priority for desks and accommodation is given for research that matches our charitable objects, we welcome applications from all scholars who would benefit from the use of our library.

See page 23 for further information on how to make a booking.

Community at Tyndale House

Our community is made up of researchers from all levels: postgraduate students, career scholars, pastors and missionaries on sabbatical. We also employ a team of academics working on long-term projects. This makes our library a hub of biblical expertise and a vibrant research community that extends a warm welcome — whether you are with us for a day, or for a whole PhD.

Scholars and families participate in regular community events. During the day, we gather for daily coffee times and weekly chapel services. Readers and residents also organise reading groups, Bible studies, and barbecues. There are a variety of spaces available for community use, including common rooms, a garden, and a children's play area.

“At the heart of Tyndale House is a Christian community of scholars who seek to serve the Church through their work and to support and shape each other as they do it. We believe scholarship is better in community; it makes for better work and better scholars.”

*Dr Peter J Williams,
Principal at Tyndale House*

Study in our library

As the only academic library in the UK focused entirely on biblical studies, the Tyndale House Library is the perfect place for focused research and writing on the Bible. Our specialist collection includes over 50,000 volumes and readers have access to significant digital collections.

We have space for 58 scholars and welcome researchers from across the globe for short- and long-term stays. Each reader has a dedicated personal desk during their stay, including shelving to store books. Our collection is reference-only, which means the books stay in the library and are always available when they are needed, either from our shelves or from another reader's desk.

While we don't offer teaching or degree programmes ourselves, we are a ten-minute walk from the Cambridge University Library and a five-minute walk from the Cambridge Divinity Faculty.

Desk bookings

Desks are available Monday – Saturday from 8 am – 10 pm. If you require any assistance, highly qualified library staff are available Monday – Friday from 9 am – 5:30 pm.

Please check our website for more details on opening times: tyndalehouse.com/library/opening-hours.

Your desk booking includes an invitation to our regular coffee breaks, when researchers gather in a collaborative atmosphere to network and discuss their work.

Residential life at Tyndale House

Staying on site at Tyndale House allows scholars to prioritise their research while participating in a vibrant community.

We have a limited range of accommodation available for both short- and long-term visits, including single ensuite study rooms, one-, two- and three-bedroom flats and a four-bedroom house. All accommodation is fully furnished. Kitchens are supplied with basic dinner service and cooking utensils, including pots and pans. More detailed information can be obtained on booking.

As a mutually benefitting community, we expect residents to serve on at least one rota (i.e. hospitality, security or gardening rotas) and to participate in extending a warm welcome to new readers and residents.

The cost of our accommodation varies and usually depends on the type of accommodation available (size, number of bedrooms, etc.). In order to live on site, residents must have a desk booked in the library for the duration of their stay. Accommodation bookings run on a weekly basis. There are no reductions for part-week stays. A week is counted from Monday at 12pm until Sunday at 6pm.

Booking rates for our accommodation can be found at tyndalehouse.com/booking-rates
